A. P. & L. to Cut Its Electric Rate Over Entire State

Stuttgart Decision by Fact Tribunal Establishes Precedent

FEAR U. S. THREAT

Tennessee Valley Authority Competition Brings Cheaper Power

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(P)—General Manager Frank M. Wilkes of the Arkansas Power & Light Co. announced reductions in rates Saturday to more than 200 cities and towns served by his company in Arkansas.

The aggregate saving would be $225,000 per year, he said.

The reduction will become effective in July on all bills payable in August.

The percentage of reduction could not be given at once, Wilkes said, but the new rate structure follows in comparison with the old:

Residential: New rate 6 cents for first 40 KWH, old rate 7, next 110 KWH, new rate 5 cents, old rate 6, next 150 KWH, new rate 3 cents, old rate 4; in excess of 300 KWH, new rate 2 cents, old rate 3.

Wilkes' announcement said the power company would not seek to contest the recent finding of the State Fact Finding Tribunal that the City of Stuttgart was entitled to a rate reduction of about 10 per cent, although, he asserted, the tribunal's finding "was not warranted by the record of facts."

Commercial Rates

The new commercial rates will be: 6 cents for the first 300 KWH, as compared with the old rate of 7 cents for the first 500 KWH; 5 cents for the next 700 KWH, as compared with 6 cents for the next 500 KWH; 3 cents for the next 1,000 KWH, as compared with the old rate of 2-1/2 cents for 1,500 or more KWH; and 2 cents for all KWH over 2,000.

Stuttgart Started It

LITTLE ROCK.—The Arkansas Power & Light Co. is preparing to make a general reduction of approximately 10 per cent on electric rates to residential consumers and a somewhat smaller reduction to commercial users, it was reported Friday.

The announcement probably will be made by company officials at Stuttgart Tuesday night when the City Council is expected to pass an ordinance to put into effect a reduction of approximately 10 per cent which the Arkansas Fact Finding Tribunal reported Thursday is justified by earnings of the company on its Stuttgart property.

Proposed Schedule

P. A. Lasley, chairman of the tribunal, made public Friday a schedule of reduced rates which he recommended to the Stuttgart City Council for adoption Tuesday night.

The new schedule would save residential and commercial consumers in Stuttgart approximately $6,100. The tribunal's report found that the Stuttgart property's earnings were $6,724 in excess of a reasonable return on the company's investment.

If the schedule recommended by Stuttgart should be put into effect throughout the Arkansas Power and Light company's system, the resultant reduction to rate payers would be approximately $197,121, it was said.

This savings in rates would be distributed as follows:

Residential users in Little Rock, $41,000.

Residential users in other cities, towns and rural sections, $63,621.

Commercial consumers in entire state, including Little Rock, $92,500.

Officials Refute

Officials of the Power and Light company declined to discuss the report that a state-wide reduction would be put into effect soon, although they confirmed the report that reductions of approximately 10 per cent were made effective recently in Louisiana and Mississippi by companies headed by Harvey C. Couch, president of the Arkansas company.

Negotiations for reductions in those states were started several months ago after effects of the TVA power development began to be felt in Tennessee and adjoining states.

Mr. Couch conferred with officials of the Arkansas tribunal when he was in Little Rock several weeks ago. He told a Gazette reporter at that time that the matter of a general rate reduction had been under consideration

Laundry Worker Sought in Theft of Clothes, Auto

Mack Powell, Employee of Only 3 Weeks, Object of Search

RADIO IS MISSING

Entrusted With Key to Laundry, New Employee Apparently Missing

Mack Powell, employee of Hope Steam Laundry, was the object of a search by police Saturday after a series of robberies here Friday night. Loot, believed to have been taken by Powell, included a new Pontiac sedan, approximately $150 worth of clothing and a $70 radio.

The car was stolen from Hempstead County Motor company, the clothing from Hope Steam Laundry and the radio from Hempstead County Lumber company.

An automobile salesman said Powell had been "negotiating" with the motor company for the car three days, taking it Friday night on a demonstration drive about the city.

On its return, the car was placed inside the building. The deal was to have been completed sometime Saturday. During the night the front door of the building was opened and the car driven out.

Powell, who carried a key to the laundry building, is believed to have gone there next. The loot obtained consisted mostly of men's suits, shirts, and ties.

Appearing at Hempstead County Lumber company, Powell obtained a radio for the car, which was released to him without a down payment.

Borrowed $3

About 11 o'clock Friday night Powell appeared at Mission Inn, borrowing $3 from Bill Hutchins, clerk. At that time Powell was driving a new car, Hutchins said. That was the last seen of him in or about the city.

Powell came here about three weeks ago from Mt. Vernon, Texas. He was hired as a helper at the laundry.

Drouth Gives Way to Flood in West

Torrential Rains Descend on Fields of Sun-Burned Grain

By the Associated Press

Rains in torrential quantities washed away some drouth worries along a broad area from the upper lakes region to the Pacific coast Friday, but in certain sections the downpours merely increased farm worries.

Rejoicing over the break in the drouth was tempered by windstorm and flood damage in Iowa and South Dakota. In northwest Iowa much damage was caused by soil erosion.

A farmer and his son were crushed to death near Tripp, S. D., when a large barn, wrecked by a storm, crashed upon them. Another farmer was killed near Mitchell, S. D. A tourist who said he was blinded by the rainstorm.

The downpour brought flood conditions to northwestern Iowa. Tons of loose top soil were washed from the upland areas. Homes in the lowlands were endangered and the washing out of railroad tracks temporarily halted traffic.

Scores of families fled their homes when the Floyd river left its banks and covered a mile-wide area in the east part of Sioux City, Ia. Rains of four inches were reported at Sheldon and Spencer, Ia., but the central and eastern parts of the state remained in the clutches of the drouth.

Nearly every section of the Dakotas and Minnesota received rains. Windstorms accompanied the deluge in southeastern Minnesota and eastern South Dakota. Pastures, corn and garden crops benefited greatly, but small grain in the Northwest was said to be practically beyond redemption.

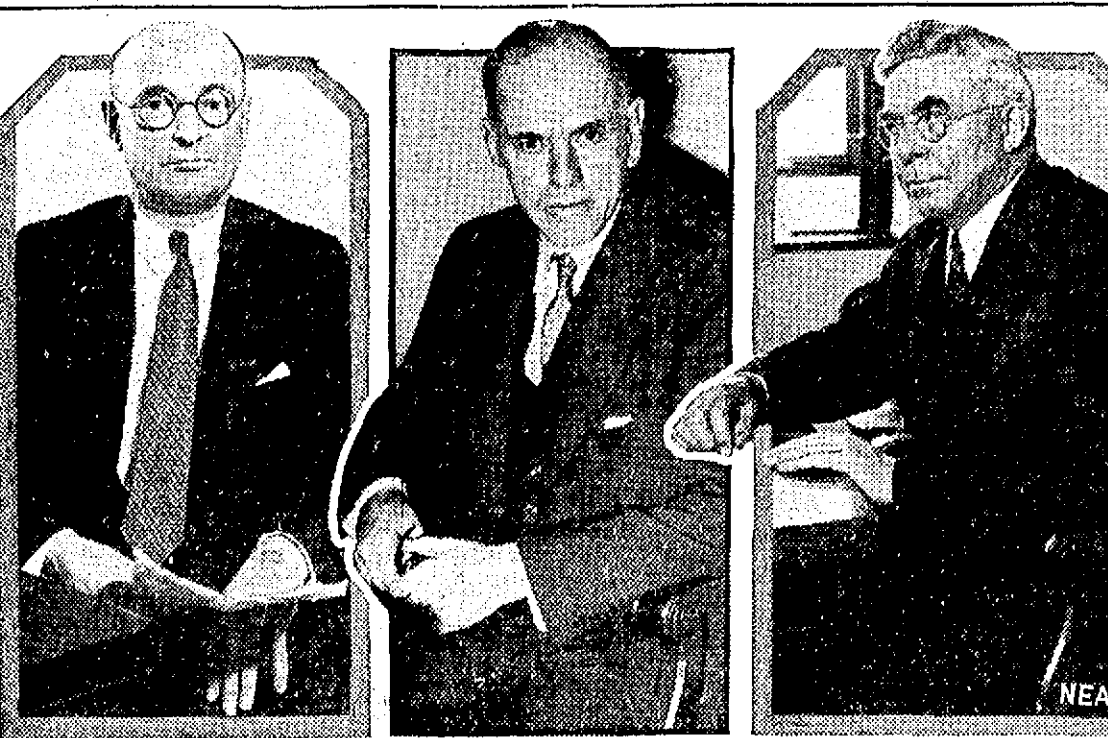

Rains totaled from three to three and one-half inches in southwestern Minnesota. University farm experts said normal precipitation should give the state an adequate feed crop to tide its livestock over the winter. They said chances were good for a fair corn crop.

One said continued regular rain was needed to save the late crops of small grain from destruction.

In northeastern Nebraska, where rains have continued for several days, corn and hay were reported in good condition. Thursday night's rain covered most of eastern Nebraska but that area needed much more rain. Small grains in the state were generally poor or a failure.

Kiwanians Close Good Will Trips

Season's Excursions Ends With Meeting at McCaskill

A Kiwanis' good-will trip to McCaskill Friday was the last of the scheduled trips for this season. Charles Dana Gibson, club president, announced that the net result of all the trips had been gratifying.

W. S. Atkins explained to the audience at McCaskill that the purpose of the trips was to foster good-will and friendship between the people of Hope and surrounding communities. In this behalf the club has posted $50 prize for the best essay on "Is Wealth redistribution necessary to permanent recovery? Is so, how is it to be accomplished?" The contest is open to boys and girls between the ages of 12 to 20. The contest closes July 4th.

Music was furnished for the McCaskill meeting by Rigdill's string band.

Elmo Carl-Lee Certified as Candidate Despite 1932 Bolt

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Democratic State Central Committee voted Saturday to allow Elmo Carl-Lee, of Augusta, who admitted bolting the party ticket in last summer's special primary, to become a candidate for state senator.

The committee had previously voted 12 to 10 against approving his certification, but after favorable action had been taken on the petitions of Dr. H. B. Hardy of Centerville, Faulkner county, who will seek to have the committee direct his certification as a candidate for state senator from the Twenty-seventh district, and Henry Hollingsworth of Bearden, who will certification as candidate for state senator from the Nineteenth district.

Both Dr. Hardy and Mr. Hollingsworth said they mailed party pledges to Mr. Combs before the ticket closed last month, but the pledges were not received. The call for the committee meeting mentioned specifically the petitions of these candidates, but said that other business may be considered.

E. E. Alexander of Blytheville is expected to ask the committee to certify him as a candidate for congress from the First district. Mr. Alexander paid his ballot fee by a draft which was returned to the secretary unpaid. Mr. Alexander said he had made arrangements to take care of the draft, but the arrangements miscarried.

In a somewhat similar situation, John L. Carler of Little Rock was permitted to pay a cash fee several days after the ticket closed, after his check for a fee as candidate for attorney general was returned unpaid by the bank. This question also may

$750,000 Tax Fine Levied by France

Jenny Dolly, Dancer, Penalized for Hiding $200,000 Ring

PARIS, France.—(P)—Jenny Dolly, one half of the famous dancing team of Dolly Sisters, Saturday was fined $750,000 and given a suspended sentence of three days in jail for evading payment of the luxury tax on her $100,000 ring which she bought at Cannes in 1928.

The ring was valued at about $200,000, and the government tax would have been $32,000.

Arkansas Nears Drouth Aid Goal

Expect 300,000 Acres to Pasture 135,000 Head of Cattle

LITTLE ROCK.—Arkansas was within striking distance Friday night of the 300,000 acres of pasture required as the minimum to feed the 135,000 head of cattle to be shipped into the state next week from South Dakota, with approximately 295,000 acres pledged. E. B. Whitaker, state agricultural extension service district agent in charge of the drive, announced.

Despite the large number of acres which are being made available to the State Extension Service daily, Mr. Whitaker pointed out that it will take between 300,000 and 500,000 acres to care for the cattle properly, and urged that farmers continue to offer land.

J. A. Hemphill of Warren, Bradley county agent, reported that Bradley county could furnish approximately 50,000 acres. Arthur F. Lee, Drew county agent, reported that 18 persons in the county had pledged 21,200 acres on which 5,000 cattle could be grazed, and S. W. Houston, Chicot county agent, said about 25,000 acres were available.

H. E. Thompson, Prairie county agent, reported that about 7,000 acres were available in his county and J. M. Thompson, St. Francis county agent, reported that 5,000 head of cattle could be taken care of in that county.

John L. Faulkner, Lawrence county agent, informed Mr. Whitaker that approximately 7,500 acres would be available for 2,200 cattle.

Futrell Sponsors Two Amendments

But Governor Is Not Interested in 4-Year Term Proposal

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Futrell indicated Friday that he will take advantage of provisions of an act passed by the 1933 legislature to prevent proposed constitutional amendments which he is sponsoring from being confused with proposed amendments and initiated acts sponsored by various groups.

Postpones Final Monticello Board Session Until June 15

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Governor Futrell Saturday postponed until June 15 his meeting with the board of trustees of Monticello Agricultural & Mechanical college and State Comptroller Smith for consideration of the results of investigations by the board an dthe comptroller of student charges against President Frank Horstfall and John Richardson of Warren, member of the board.

The extension in the meeting date was made to permit attorneys for all interested parties to study the report made by Comptroller Smith on the investigation of the fiscal aspects of the students' charges.

Justifies Probe

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Although many of the charges brought by students of Monticello A. & M. college against the management "were not substantiated," enough has been developed to justify attention, Comptroller Smith said Saturday in his report of the audit and investigation of the school's affairs.

Smith's report was made to Governor Futrell at a meeting of the board of trustees of the school.

Recovery Act Is Press Meet Topic

J. J. Harrison Defends Federal Government's Expenditures

CLARKSVILLE, Ark.—The National Recovery Act has put newspaper publishers and editors in an optimistic frame of mind.

At least, that was the general opinion expressed during the opening day's program of the 62nd annual convention of the Arkansas Press Association which met in Clarksville Friday.

There were editors and publishers here from practically every section of the state. No long faces were observed. If this may be accepted as a criterion, there has been a great recovery in the newspaper business.

While the attendance was not what may have been expected, by actual count there was 142 present for the annual banquet. Officials of the association said that many others were expected to register Saturday.

At the banquet Friday night, James J. Harrison of Little Rock, director of the National Emergency Council for Arkansas, made the principal address. His subject was "On Our Way." He discussed business recovery since the inauguration of President Roosevelt and spoke enthusiastically of his observations of improvement in business.

In part Mr. Harrison said: "We are somewhat frightened by the very vitality of our recovery and disposed to question the remedies applied. Are these enormous government expenditures jeopardizing or promoting national recovery?"

"In the first place, they represent the temporary but necessary substitution of government action for individual initiative. The 50 rulers of America listed by Ambassador Gerard in 1930 were nearly all in bomb proof dugouts in February, 1933.

"These expenditures, unlike the much greater war-time expenditures of 1917-18, are contemplated and undertaken for the purpose of restoring the badly damaged structure of society rather than destroying it.

"The greater part of the expenditures are in the form of provent loans and will be repaid with negligible losses. These loans will not only save the individuals homes, farms, banks, railroads and other institutions to which they are made, but they have arrested the spreading decay of universal bankruptcy and saved the whole structure of our industrial society.

"Moreover, our outright expenditures for emergency relief, despite occasional evidence of shocking traffic in human misery, may turn out to be the wisest of all our expenditures. If during this decade, we develop a national conscience for social justice and produce engineers in human relations who can chart the broad new highways of fraternity, we shall count the tuition in this broad school of experience through which we are passing as the most fruitful investment in our history."

Crane Strikes Wire Resulting in Death

DOTHAN, Ala.—(P)—A low flying crane killed itself Friday and started a string of accidents that resulted in the death of one person and the destruction of a smokehouse.

The crane struck a high tension electric wire which snapped. The broken wires set fire to a smokehouse, and charged a wire fence on the farm of J. A. Holiday.

Seaborn Rainey, 23, a negro, ran to Holiday in extinguishing the fire, and came in contact with the highly charged fence. He was electrocuted.

Total May Reach $200,000; Luke Lea Bonds Are Probed

$40,000 in County Securities Reported to Be Fraudulent

POSTED FOR LOAN

Life & Casualty Co., Nashville, Making Investigation

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(P)—A Tennessee bond scandal involving approximately $200,000 of assorted bogus securities stirred the state capital here Saturday, and at the same time an investigation was started on the validity of $40,000 collateral posted by Luke Lea against a loan.

County securities represented as issues of Dyer and Henderson counties were alleged to be fraudulent, District Attorney Murray, of Jackson, said he had been informed, although some were "almost exact duplicates."

The Life & Casualty Insurance Co., of Nashville, reported that when Lea obtained a $28,000 loan from it last March he posted collateral that included $40,000 par-value of Henderson county bonds.

The validity of the bonds is questioned, and the company is now investigating.

Now in Prison

Luke Lea and his son Luke Lea, Jr., are now in North Carolina state penitentiary serving criminal sentences for the failure of an Asheville bank following the collapse of the Roger Caldwell investment trust in Tennessee in 1930, which carried with it the A. B. Bank & Co. insurance and banking system in Arkansas, and closed the Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. in Hope.

Luke Lea was an attorney who entered the publishing business, acquiring the morning and evening Tennesseean at Nashville. At one time he served as United States senator from Tennessee.

In 1927 he joined with Rogers Caldwell, young Tennessee banker, in the purchase of the Memphis Commercial Appeal for 3 1/2 million dollars, and in other investments, Caldwell sponsoring junior department store chains and other ventures into capital underwriting.

They failed in 1930, losing control of the Commercial Appeal, and the Tennesseean papers now being operated by a receiver.

Improvement Tax Rule Is Changed

Not to Be Deducted From HOLC Loans Unless Especially Large

LITTLE ROCK.—Improvement district taxes will not be deducted from the face value of the loans made by the Home Owners Loan Corporation if these taxes are only nominal in comparison with the value of the property. R. Frank Milwee, state manager of the HOLC, announced Friday.

The Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, D. C., announced several weeks ago that all future improvement district taxes must be deducted from a loan by the HOLC before it is completed. With this provision in effect, many Arkansians were confronted with the certainty that, if their applications were granted, the loans would be several hundred dollars less than the amount needed to refinance their home.

Mr. Milwee explained that, in cases where the value of the property, upon which the loan is to be made, is low and the improvement taxes are high, some amount must be deducted from the total loan to prevent the taxes from "eating up the loan."

He estimated that in most cases the taxes would be nominal if they are under five per cent of the loan. For example on a $5,000 home, improvement district taxes amounting to $250 would not be deducted.

The new ruling announced by Mr. Milwee is the result of a resolution recently adopted by the Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, as follows:

"Improvement assessments existing but not yet due and payable at the time of closing of the loan may be paid in the discretion of the state manager or other home mortgages, obligations or liens."

Mr. Milwee also announced that on those cases where the final adjustment between the mortgagor and the mortgagee has been made and the case has passed to the legal department for closing, the improvement taxes do not have to be taken into consideration, unless they are exorbitant.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—If munitions industry investigators look sharply enough, they'll find some interesting evidence in the government's own files. Assuming, of course, that nothing has been removed.

Exports of arms and other war materials to South America and other warring countries haven't always been made without the knowledge—or even the encouragement—of certain persons in certain federal departments.

The boys who learned from Mr. Hoover how to high-pressure our foreign trade didn't see why we shouldn't sell our machine guns as vigorously as anything else.

Some of them are still here and even their recent activities, when and if revealed, may cause such a flurry as to result in the loss of a few minor jobs in two departments.

In the present Chaco war, Paraguayan soldiers actually used to find dead Bolivian soldiers clad in U. S. Army uniforms, with regimental and other insignia.

The War Department had sold the uniforms and other surplus stocks to private contractors here. But that's only a sidelight.

Stephen T. Raushenbush, chief investigator for Chairman Nye of the Senate munitions committee, is checking files of the Commerce, War, State and other departments. The White House sent word down that he was to have full access.

Some of the investigators who worked with Ferdinand Pecora on the stock market investigation, digging up the dirt on J. P. Morgan, Albert Wiggin, and other emperors of finance, will now work under Raushenbush and delve into affairs of huge corporations which make munitions.

Well, Anyway, It's a Horse
What ever did become of the famous mechanical horse which Calvin Coolidge used to ride in the White House?

Ted Clark, Coolidge's former personal secretary, thinks it must be in storage up at Northampton.

But a lot of pretty, bare-legged girls are thrilled every day by rides on an iron steed which they understand is the very same animal. It's installed out at the Shoreham swimming pool and the cheek girl who passes out towels tells everybody to "be sure and take a ride on Mr. Coolidge's horse." Everybody does.

It seems that a man who had the horse and didn't like it came around and offered it if he could swim free when he wanted. The nag was a gift to him from a lady whose husband wasn't in love with it, either.

Maybe it's the Coolidge horse and maybe not, but everybody agrees it isn't much fun unless you think so.

Huey's Holding His Own
Again, your correspondent is forced to point out that that great grunting match, the Administration vs. Huey Lang, is far from one-sided.

Huey isn't getting federal patronage, but neither are the administration's appointments to important Louisiana jobs made against his wishes, getting through the Senate.

What do you suppose became of that nomination of Daniel D. Moore to be collector of internal revenue in Huey's state? The Finance committee reported it favorably after the Kingfish had shown Moore's connection with Colonel Bradley, the gambling man, and created an uproar heard all around the country.

Insiders are sure it won't go through in this session.

The only other anti-Long appointment referred to the Senate was that of Rene A. Viosea as U. S. District Attorney at New Orleans. Perhaps you didn't notice that the Judiciary committee, after plenty of words from Huey, turned down Viosea, whose name was then withdrawn by the White House.

Explanation: The Senate is a back-scratching institution and few members care to incur Huey's enmity. Huey has an uncanny way of turning up scandals involving his foes.

Also, senatorial courtesy—which seldom allows confirmation of a man "personally objectionable" to a member—extends even unto Huey.

Laughter Is Best Cure For Family Troubles

The other day a woman got on the street car with a tiny boy in tow. Evidently Fritz, or Tatters or Cecil, or whatever the dog's name was, had come to see them off on their trip to town.

However, the parting was too much for him. With the agility of a moth, he shot between the legs of two policemen standing on the platform, wiggled past the conductor-motorman, and wormed his way through a forest of feet to the other end of the car.

"I can't take the dog along," wailed the lady. "Tell the motorman to stop the car so he can find his way home."

But the motorman, now behind time, had other things to think about besides dogs. He had started off with his foot hard on the gas, so to speak, and he was making the most of the green lights.

"Oh, dear, if he goes too far he'll get lost," said the worried lady anxiously.

"Sure he will," agreed everybody. And everybody agreed, too, that no one can go shopping with a baby and a dog. It just couldn't be done.

Nobody could have a dog traipsing at her heels, getting choked in swinging doors and tramped on in elevators, even if the floorwalkers didn't see him and put him out.

Sign of Relief
So pressure was brought to bear on the motorman about three blocks down, and Fritz, or Tatters, or Cecil, was passed from hand to hand and foot to foot and gently but firmly evicted.

He nearly got his head off trying to get back to the family, but at last he was clear. Fifty necks stretched to look back and when his yellow form was seen at last standing forlornly, but safely, on the sidewalk, a sigh of relief went up, if one can hear even an orchestral sigh over the noise of our cars.

"He's safe. He'll go home. Don't worry."

It was a general introduction. Everyone talked to everyone else. Even the grumps got chummy.

Well—that was not all. By and by some one discovered a sparrow sitting on the edge of an open ventilator. Bets went round as to how long he would stay. The bird, however, had some shopping to do, too, evidently, and a five-mile trip free of charge on the street car was more to his taste than flying.

He sat and preened himself, so he would look his best. Then he settled down and just rode.

Perhaps he was the loop. At any rate he was there when the crowd got off.

Laugh and Let Laugh
People waiting for the car must have thought the circus was over. The disembarking passengers were grinning like school let out.

A dog and a bird! Funny only because they were out of place.

Too bad to tack on a moral to just plain fun, but I think it is true that there is merriment always around the corner if we would stretch our necks. Family life is always so much happier for laughter. It is the best medicine under the sun. What we look on as trouble can often be switched to an angle of comedy if we cultivate that saving grace, a sense of humor.

Children laugh because they see fun in most things. How quickly we kill it. Why can't we let them laugh and laugh with them?

Just like a lot of kids. It is a good sign when people say that of parents. What this country needs is fun. We are starving ourselves unnecessarily, I think.

DONNA OF THE BIG TOP

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DONNA GABRIEL, circus performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, MADLINE SIDDAL, Donna goes to Madeline's home to recuperate, pretending to be the other girl. She is nicknamed the deception but keeps it up, even when MADLINE SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, asks her to marry him. Bill and Donna are married.

MRS. PLASTER, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy.

MRS. SIDDAL, Madeline's grandmother, has a stroke. Meanwhile Madeline, who has married DON DAVIS, the stunt trainer, is killed. Can Donna, Donna's deception and decides to blackmail her. He comes to the nearby town and Donna agrees to meet him. She deceives, telling him she is going to a neighbor.

Bill grows jealous because she is gone so long. He finds an anonymous letter written by Mrs. Plaster telling him that Donna has come to meet him. He has just finished reading the letter when Donna arrives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIX
"I was startled," Donna had said to Con. "It's so dark and I didn't see you." Her voice shook a little.

Con offered his hand but she ignored it. Then he laughed. "Let me look at you," he said.

"What is it you want, Con?" the girl asked hurriedly. "I haven't much time and I'm not anxious to drive on a country road in this kind of weather."

"You should have let me come to you."

"You know I couldn't do that."

"Why not? Aren't we old friends? Didn't I marry your partner?"

"Yes, I know but my husband doesn't know that. I mean about Madeline. You see—"

"So the masquerade is still going on, eh?"

"Masquerade?"

"You didn't think I knew anything about that, did you? You haven't told him the truth yet?"

"No," miserably.

"Afraid he'd kick you out if he learned you weren't the girl he thought?"

"Of course not! Only you see, Grandfather—Madeline's grandfather is totally blind. That first time I went to the farm when Madeline and I—when I visited him pretending to be her—made him so happy I didn't have the heart to tell him I wasn't his granddaughter, that she didn't care enough for him to spend a week-end with him. Then—after the accident—didn't Madeline tell you how she sent for her cousin and told him it was Madeline who was blind?"

"Yes, she told me."

"At first I didn't know I was supposed to be she. I mean in the hospital I didn't know it. Then when I thought of how long it would be before I was well and how lovely it was on the farm I couldn't resist the temptation. I intended to tell them the truth, but somehow I couldn't. And—" she stared straight ahead at the rows of tombstones, now murky gray in the dusk. "I had fallen in love with Bill."

"CON laughed incredulously. "That I can't swallow. I can understand your liking the farm in the summer and the rest of it, but don't tell me you married this yokel because you're in love with him!"

"He isn't a yokel," Donna said indignantly. "Bill Siddal is better educated than you are, Con David. He may not be as sophisticated, nor have seen as much of the world but he's the finest man I ever knew except Grandfather. I love him! I loved him the first day he came to the circus—"

"Yes, you did. You married him because I married Madeline."

"What-a? You don't honestly believe that?"

"No, I don't. I wish I did. But I know this, Donna—whether you are in love with him or not you're afraid of him and I wouldn't give the snap of my finger for a love that's afraid. He may be fine and honorable and he probably married you because he was in love with you—God knows I can understand that—but his love isn't big enough to forgive what you've done and you know it. You're in mortal terror for fear he'll suspect you aren't the girl he believes you to be. Isn't that so?"

"Yes," she whispered. Then she added, "But it isn't altogether Bill. It's Grandfather. The shock might kill him in his weakened condition."

"He doesn't know about Madeline's death?"

"No."

"Con whistled under his breath. "Pretty soft for you—her dying."

"What do you mean?"

"You know what I mean. Maybe she told me the truth and maybe she didn't, but from all I gathered the old man is pretty well fixed."

"The farm is valuable."

"And there are no heirs but this precious Bill and Madeline. Madeline was the nearest kin and due to inherit all the old man possesses. Now she's dead and you're supposed to be she. What are you going to do about it when the old man dies?"

"I—I hadn't thought—not since she died."

"I'll bet you haven't! With him hanging to life by the skin of his teeth and a will made out giving everything to his granddaughter, it's a valuable piece of property had belonged to her at the time of her death it would naturally be mine now. I've no intention of standing by and seeing this man you've married come into the estate that should be mine."

"I don't see how you can help it," Donna said in a tight voice. "That's all you know about it. It costs me plenty to house my cats. I own a farm I could turn it into headquarters for them."

"All that lovely fertile land! I wouldn't let you."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Select Rouge to Harmonize Perfectly With the Skin

How to rouge correctly—that's the question. And the "don'ts" in the answer loom larger than the "do's."

Don't smear rouge all over your face. Remember that you are trying to improve on rather than distort nature. So make a careful survey of your cheeks when they are flushed with natural color. Wherever the color shows there is where your rouge should go. Seldom does a girl discover vivid spots of color in the hollow of her throat, back of her ears or across her forehead.

Don't leave harsh edges around the place where you've put on rouge. Natural color in your cheeks is streaked or blotchy.

Don't make up for the daytime under an electric light. Stand in front of a window with a hand mirror while you're blending rouge. But don't make up for evening in the daylight. Have a strong bulb over your dressing table and see that the light shines on your face and not on the mirror.

Here's one last warning—don't select a rouge unless it harmonizes perfectly with the tones of your skin. And very few can wear orange shades unless they have acquired a suntan.

A Hart Talk About Facials

Modern routines for summer facials have been simplified so that even the busiest woman can find time to give herself a treatment now and then. Since her regular cosmetics are the only preparations necessary, no extra expense is involved.

Here are the steps in a beneficial home facial treatment: Cleanse the face and neck with soap and water or one of the liquid pore cleansers. Be sure that the skin is scrupulously clean. Then spread on a thin layer of tissue cream and pat it in for about five minutes. If you have a regular patten, use it. If not, use the tips of your fingers on your face and neck and the back of one hand under your chin. Don't pat too vigorously.

When the tissue or nourishing cream has been partially absorbed by the skin, wipe off the surplus and, dipping large cotton pads in ice-cold skin tonic or mild astringent, lay them on face and neck. Wrap a piece of ice in a cloth and rapidly rub the cotton pads with it. Then dip two more cotton pads in eye lotion and put them across your eyes. Lie down for 15 minutes and relax. When you get up, use the cotton pads to remove the rest of the cream. Put on foundation lotion, rouge, powder and other makeup.

Prices Reduced on Chevrolet's Cars

Price Cuts Are Made on Both Master and Standard Lines

Increased automotive sales, prolonging factory employment and proving a potent factor in the national recovery program, are expected by W. E. Holler, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, as a result of the price reduction now in effect on all Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks.

The reduction, announced June 1, and effective the following day, not only brings all Chevrolet trucks and Chevrolet Master knee-action models to the lowest price since the introduction of the 1934 line, but applies also to the new Standard passenger cars formally introduced on June 2 at 62 General Motors exhibits throughout the country. These models were already the lowest-priced cars of six or more cylinders on the market.

No changes whatever, Mr. Holler pointed out, have been made either in the product or in the equipment included in its price. The reduction reflects Chevrolet's success in reaching high-volume production with its 1934 line, and maintaining it consistently by reason of a strong public demand. It is also a frank bid for continuation of that demand.

"The immediate effect of the price reduction," Mr. Holler said, "will naturally be the stimulation of retail sales which are already at a high peak. This follows as a natural sequence to the fact that Chevrolet performance, economy, comfort, dependability and safety are now obtainable at the lowest outlay since the new cars came out. Thousands of prospective buyers, we confidently believe, will take advantage of this opportunity."

"Soon the result will make itself felt over a very broad front. It will not only stimulate business in the local community where each sale is made, but, in the aggregate, will help to maintain factory employment at a high level, benefiting untold thousands in factory, field and mine, from which raw materials come, as well as the very large number directly engaged in building cars."

by his company for several months, but gave no indication when a decision might be reached or what the decision would be. Company officials, however, have said that a general rate reduction movement by electric power concerns is under way throughout the section that will have to compete with TVA power rates.

A Voluntary Move.

Chairman Laskey made it clear that the tribunal has no authority to require the power company or other utility concerns to reduce rates and that, if a state-wide reduction is made, it will be a voluntary move on the part of the company.

The tribunal is authorized only to make rate base investigations and to report its findings and recommendations to city councils when the utilities operate within municipalities and when the Arkansas Corporation Commission when the utilities operate outside of municipalities.

Trend in Tennessee.

As an example of the trend toward lower electric rates in territory affected by the TVA, a statement issued by the Tennessee Railroad and Utilities Commission recently showed that 12 electric rate reduction orders had been issued by that commission since January 1, 1933.

The reductions aggregated more than $2,400,000 a year and affected Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville and hundreds of smaller towns served by utilities serving those cities.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

In Making Pot Or Cottage Cheese Use Curdled Milk As Foundation

By MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Staff Writer

Cottage cheese, known also as pot or Dutch cheese and even schmierkase, is a fine addition to your summer menus, first because it's wholesome for hot weather and second because it's easily made.

As a matter of fact most city markets and dairies offer a good quality, with cream, or without. But you can make it yourself, and use up extra milk. Because it is the protein part of the milk, cottage cheese will take the place of meat or eggs for luncheon or supper.

Although buttermilk is sometimes used, thick curdled milk that has soured quickly is the best foundation for a good quality of cheese.

Heat Hardens Curd

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Cantaloupe, cereal, cream, broiled cottage ham, potatoes, hushed in milk, toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Hot bouillon, stuffed tomato salad, graham bread, cream, puffs, milk tea.

Dinner: Jellyed veal loaf, new potatoes in cream sauce, buttered green peas, frozen cheese salad, cherry pudding, milk, coffee.

Place the bowl containing the thick sour milk in a large pan of hot water. Never let the milk itself become more than lukewarm. Too high a temperature toughens and hardens the curd. Let stand until thorough separation takes place. Then pour into a large square of double cheese cloth placed over a colander. Gather up the four corners of the cheese cloth and hang to drain. It will take from twenty-four to thirty-six hours for the curd to become firm and the whey to drain.

Baer and Carnera Are in Condition

N. Y. Athletic Commission Orders Them to Go on June 14

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Max Baer and Primo Carnera Friday were reported in "satisfactory" condition for their 15-round heavyweight championship fight next Thursday night in Madison Square Garden bowl and the New York state athletic commission ordered the fight to go on as scheduled.

The announcement was made by Chairman John J. Phelan after both boxers had been given an exhaustive examination at commission headquarters by three commission doctors—Dr. William Walker, Dr. Morris Beyer and Dr. Vincent Nardillo.

No vote in the commission was necessary as the decision of the physicians as to a fighter's condition is mandatory under the laws of the state. Both Phelan and Dr. Walker were two of the three members of the commission, previously had expressed themselves as in favor of holding the fight as scheduled while only Bill Brown had said he believed Baer was not in shape to fight and that the bout should be postponed.

completely out. Remove from cheese cloth to a bowl and beat with a fork, adding cream, either sweet or sour, then make the mixture the consistency you like it. Salt to taste.

A deliciously summery dessert is made by combining unripened cottage cheese with whipped cream, using equal parts of whipped cream and cheese. Serve with strawberry or current preserves and crisp crackers.

Free A. U. Tuition for 24 in County

County Judge Announces Apportionment for Hempstead

Twenty-four students are eligible to attend the University of Arkansas from Hempstead county without payment of tuition, County Judge H. M. Stephens announced Saturday. The announcement said:

"I am pleased to announce to the young men and women of Hempstead county that I am authorized to appoint 24 students as beneficiaries in the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. These appointments entitle the holder to free tuition for four years."

"The University is a state supported institution maintained by the taxpayers of Arkansas for the benefit of the young people of the state. In addition to the usual literary and classical courses offered in colleges, it comprises, as a part of its organization, the state college of agriculture and engineering, and is the only institution in the state giving complete college courses and degrees in these important industrial subjects. It also has complete courses in law and business administration."

"The University has also a College of Education whose graduates receive diplomas entitling them to teach in the public schools for life."

"For the young ladies there are complete courses in domestic science and art."

"For admission to the University one must be a graduate of an accredited high school. Those who do not live in towns having high schools may obtain appointments and enter the University Training High School, where they may prepare themselves for the freshman class."

"Complete information about the University may be obtained by addressing the Registrar of the University at Fayetteville."

Barney Oldfield, daddy of drivers, did not attend the 500-mile automobile race in Indianapolis on Memorial Day, primarily because he was not invited by Eddie Rickenbacker, president of the Speedway Corporation and chairman of the board of the American Automobile Association.

Oldfield is a member of the latter but suspects that he is not a welcome one, due principally to interviews and broadcasts stressing the peril of the roaring road.

"I don't advocate prohibiting the sport, but I believe it should be made more safe, if possible," says Oldfield, who again is at the World's Fair in connection with an automobile exhibit.

Automobile racing has snuffed out 21 lives in the last 18 months. Five were killed on the Hoosier course a year ago. Two met death in a qualifying trial for the most recent test. Four had miraculous escapes when mounts hurtled the wall in their mad dash after prize and lap lure.

On losing control and skidding off the track and out of the grind, Phil Shafer, who competed in the event for the tenth time, said the bricks never were more hazardous owing to slip-

Seven Rescued in Air Liner Wreck

4 Injured as Ship Crashes in Forest During Pacific Fog

SEATTLE, Wash.—(AP)—Seven persons were rescued Friday from the wreckage of an airliner that pancaked onto a mountainside near Sellick, Wash., Thursday night, accounting for all nine men and women who figured in the crash. Four were injured.

The story of the rescue of the seven persons remaining at the scene—two others having left in search of help—was told over a private telephone line operated by a logging company in the rugged district.

Miss Daisy A. Mooney, Winthrop (Wash.) school teacher, reported lost in the forest following the crash, was found with others, the telephone reports said.

The others were Pilot Ben Redfield, Spokane, with an arm injured seriously; Stewardess Marian Bennett, Salt Lake City; Miss Helen Curran, Seattle, whose leg was hurt; Robert Clark, Wenatchee, Wash., injured; Miss Mercedes Boyd, Winthrop school teacher traveling with Miss Mooney, and Mrs. G. Johannesen.

The United Air Lines plane crashed while battling a fog last night. Copilot Dwight Hansen, Spokane, fought his way through the timber to bring help, though he also was hurt. P. C. Beezley, Seattle business man, came out early Thursday, in the belief that Hansen had been unable to reach Sellick. Both used compasses taken from the plane to guide themselves in the forest.

nor, secretary of state and state comptroller to select a number and a popular name by which each amendment or initiated or referred act shall be known and designated on the ballot.

The governor said he is interested primarily in the two proposed constitutional amendments submitted by the 1933 legislature, to limit the power of the legislature to make appropriations and to prevent issuance of bonds without a vote of the people, and in the proposed initiated amendment to provide for a state-supported public school system through tithing grade.

The governor proposed the two amendments submitted by the legislature during his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination in 1932. He said if it is necessary to prevent these amendments from becoming endangered by a campaign to "kill 'em all" he will ask that they be designated as the "Futrell amendments."

Governor Futrell said he was "emphatically not interested in being given a 'bonus' term of two years through adoption of the proposed constitutional amendment to make four-year jobs of all state, district, county and township offices now filed every two years. The governor said he would favor an amendment to make the governor's term four years, if it provided that the governor could not succeed himself and if it became effective at a time when people would know they were nominating a candidate who would be elected for a four-year term. He added that the governor should not be allowed to seek any other elective state office immediately after retiring from the governor's office."

periness caused by oil leaking from cars on the turns.

Safety Still Last

The one rule designed as a safety measure—limiting cars to 45 gallons of gasoline—worked with reverse English, what with three smashups and Mauri Rose forcing Wild Bill Cummings to a new average of 104.865 miles an hour and track record of 105.021. The Dayton driver finished only 27 seconds behind the winner.

The limited fuel turned out to be nothing more than a source of worry toward the end to the 13 who finished. Cummings had three gallons left when flagged, or enough to rifle his little four-cylinder machine about 35 miles farther.

Oldfield wouldn't raise his boy to be an automobile racing driver. The first man to drive a car a mile a minute calls the speedway championship an empty one.

"Automobile racing holds no future as it did in the days when I was driving old 'crates,'" contends Barney.

"How many autoists know who won last year's Indianapolis race, and, although 135,000 persons saw him do it, two weeks from now how many will be able to recall offhand the victor of the other day?"

Time to Retire

"But ask any horse-going person who bagged the Kentucky Derby, any golfer to relate Bobby Jones' greatest achievement, any baseball fan what club Babe Ruth plays with, or any fight fan who lifted Jack Dempsey's title, and see how quickly you get a reply."

"And if automobile racing under current conditions isn't too dangerous, why did Rickenbacker, Tommy Milton, Billy Arnold, Harry Hartz, Harlan Fongler, Earl Cooper, myself and other ex-champions forsake their chosen profession?"

"There are only two answers. Either it is too risky, or there isn't enough money in it. And I, for one, didn't quit because I couldn't make or use the coin."

"Lindbergh flew across the ocean, but I dare say he is not advising Young America to follow his example."

Germany appropriated approximately $84,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning April 1 to provide the country with an aerial fleet for protective purposes.

A new airplane model which will not burn and will banish the danger of a fire following a crash has been developed by a chemical process known as hydrogenation.

The average motorist paid only $6 in gasoline taxes in 1919, while today the average is $32.

"Riptide" to Open Big Saenger Week

Norma Shearer, Robert Montgomery Here Sunday and Monday

With a daintily glamorous vehicle that affords her the type of characterization in which she has scored her greatest triumphs, Norma Shearer comes to the Saenger in "Riptide," Sunday and Monday.

In this new film, her first since "Smilin' Through," Miss Shearer plays the part of a very modern American girl who trades her freedom to become Lady Rexford, wife of a matter-of-fact Britisher.

Robert Montgomery and Herbert Marshall, as her play-boy friend and husband, respectively, supply the triangular situation which provides motivation for the romance in which the sophisticated heroine shares her affections.

Miss Shearer's elaborate wardrobe, designed by Adrian, will be a delight to feminine eyes and, in all probability, will start new vogues and innovations in what lady will wear to be stylish this season.

Included in the impressive cast are Mrs. A. P. Campbell, Skeets Gallagher, Ralph Forbes.

be raised on the floor, officials said. Of major interest to the candidates and to many voters is the question of the eligibility of the "Wood voters" to participate in the primary this year. Efforts have been made by at least one candidate for state office to have the matter brought before the committee. Committee members apparently are divided concerning the issue, with some believing the committee has no right to rule on the question and others contending that the commission may rule upon the eligibility of candidates, if not voters. Chairman Miles may hold the matter to be out of order if an attempt is made to have it discussed.
